Rather's Curtain Closer: 'Courage'
NEW YORK, March 9, 2005

Dan Rather ended an era at CBS News on Wednesday night by signing off as Evening News anchor with a familiar message: "Courage".

Rather, who spent 24 years in the anchor chair, closed the news program with these words:

"To our soldiers in dangerous places. To those who have endured the tsunami and to all who have suffered natural disasters, and who must find the will to rebuild. To the oppressed and to those whose lot it is to struggle, in financial hardship or in failing health. To my fellow journalists in places where reporting the truth means risking all. And to each of you: 'Courage.'"

Rather is passing the baton to CBS News Chief Washington Correspondent Bob Schieffer, who will anchor the show until a permanent replacement is chosen. Rather stepped down 24 years to the day after he replaced another CBS News icon: Walter Cronkite.

The solution is...

We have an empty wallet and a tongue depressor. What could that mean?

The Hint, "He recently retired.", might have led the TH'er to consider the article on Dan Rather in the Brown Bag.

But as Dan might tell you, don't be misled by false information!

But Dan might know who we're looking for...

The empty wallet indicates that we have no money. We're broke.

The tongue depressor makes you want to say "Ahhhhh".

So there we have a counterpart of Dan's, namely, Tom Brokaw.

So teleprompt over to Circle NBC.
